sounds incredibly creepy. I can see this as a test given to high school kids so that they can think about what career would interest them/they could excel in based on their answers. However, to give it to adults mid-career is flawed. Answers would depend on work experience, life experience. Subjective.

As to the original subject of Prophecy testing. Once you've taken a test and passed it keep the password on file. A good agency can retrieve that test result if you give them the password then you don't have to take it again. If you don't pass it pull up the 'details' part. It will contain the questions and your incorrect answer.
